Library work/playshops

A creative way of enhancing students’ research skills in an informal and relaxed environment

Using board games, Lego and craft materials enables Library staff to meet and interact with students over a fun activity, answer any questions they have about using the Library and find out if they are having problems with their research. Students can de-stress, meet other students from different Schools and cultures as well as receive Library help.

The events have been held in the Library, in School cafés and the Students’ Union. Keep an eye on Twitter @hudlib to find out when our next events are. You can also book your friendly librarians to come out to run an event in your School. Just email them at library@hud.ac.uk

“It was good to spend some time being distracted by wool! and I picked up some information about the Library, answers to questions that seem too silly to bother finding someone to ask. (extending loans on ‘one week loans’) and meeting other students.” [sic]
